“Dr Breen at Palliative Care Australia said “We often use a lot of euphemisms when we talk about death, perhaps as a way of skirting the issue, for example we’ll say ‘someone passed away’ or ‘laid to rest’ but we actually use death related language for other things, such as ‘my phone died’ or ‘my car died’....”
so initiatives like Dying To Know Day are a great way of increasing people’s death literacy and willingness to talk about these issues.”
